 "Nature: Mountains, Trails, Sand, Water, and National Parks"
 Month of February 2024

When I began painting in July 2021, I painted in my backyard, in my yellow home office, the place where I graded student papers and taught virtually during the first year of the pandemic. I wrote blog posts and my memoir in my office. I also painted on the kitchen table. My office was home to my ultrarunning medals, buckles, bibs, and plaques.

In January, I transformed my home office into my yellow art studio, and where I continue to create oil and acrylic landscapes and abstracts, and an occasional mixed media. You can read more about the transformation here.

A FEW PAINTINGS CREATED IN MY ART STUDIO

"Autumn Day"

8"x10" oil on canvas

Inspired by a hike in a state park on an autumn day.

"A Creek Runs into a River"

16"x 20" oil on yellow ochre canvas

Inspired by a summer day hike in a state park.

"Untitled"

18"x 24" oil on canvas

Inspired by war and chaos in our world.

"Yellow Studio"

16"x 20" acrylic on canvas

Inspired by a photo I took of my messy art table after I finished painting "A Creek Runs into a River," and placed it on the easel. It's not a landscape, an abstract, or a mixed media. It's my first "modern art" painting.
